

How will the school let me know if they have any concerns about my child?

- If your child is identified as not making adequate progress, the school will set up a meeting with you to discuss their concerns in more detail and to: -
- listen to any concerns or background information that you may have.
- plan any additional support your child may need.
- discuss with you any referrals to outside professionals to support your child if necessary and how to collect the necessary evidence for this.
- Suggest some additional support strategies for home.
